

BRISTOL SCHOOL TEACHERS ARE GIVEN $200 "COST-OF-LIVING INCREASE"; JANITORS TO RECEIVE SAME BOOST

Action Taken by Board at Special Session Held Tuesday Night — Increase Will Total Approximately $16,000, States School Board President.

Salary increases termed "cost-of-living increases" have been granted Bristol public school teachers and janitors totaling approximately $16,000, it was learned today.

The announcement was made by Earl McEuen, president of the Bristol Public School Board, in relating the details of a special meeting of the board held Tuesday evening.

It is related by President McEuen that several weeks ago the Bristol Teachers' Association requested salary increases be granted them to meet the increased cost of living. The finance committee of the school board met with the teachers and reported back to the board as a whole, but no action was taken at that time. It was considered advisable that the matter should be thrashed out at a meeting of the board called for the purpose and at which as many of the seven members as possible be present.

The special meeting was held Tuesday night, it was stated by President McEuen. Charles Uitz, president of the teachers' association; Paul Brown, Walter Rosser and John Fetterman attended, representing the members of the teaching faculty. The question of granting increases was again discussed and the board, after further consideration, voted to give an "increased-cost-of-living" bonus of $200 per teacher and to each janitor.

The increase has been granted only for the school term 1946-47, and according to President McEuen, will not necessitate an increase in the school tax rate.

All of the members of the board attended the meeting with the exception of David Landreth, he being out of town.

William Callahan Pleads Guilty to Theft of Gasoline from P. R. R.

CASE OF C. E. LONG

Jury Excused; Many Lower Bucks Residents Called On Special Panel

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 21 — The case of the Commonwealth against William Callahan, 23, Oxford Valley, charged with larceny of 15 gallons of gasoline in June, 1943, from property of the Pennsylvania Railroad was heard in court here yesterday.

Sgt. Frank T. O'Keefe, of the P. R. R. police, testified that as he was patrolling Morrisville yards of the P. R. R. in June, 1943, he came upon Callahan and Richard Lucas in the act of taking gasoline. Lucas had been in court shortly after the episode, he being similarly charged. Callahan pleaded guilty yesterday, and was sentenced to pay $100 fine and costs. He was placed on probation, being given 60 days in which to pay.

Case of the Commonwealth against Charles Edward Long, Sr., 35, of West Bristol, was also heard yesterday. Long was charged by his wife Violet with assault and battery with attempt to ravish, the case involving his wife and 13-year-old daughter. Mrs. Long told the court her husband is "O. K." as long as he leaves liquor alone, adding that he gives her all his pay, amounting to about $60 a week.

Long has been in jail since the alleged offense. He informed the court he has learned his lesson, and said he will "never touch a drop

TRUMAN'S DESPERATE GAMBLE

Enough of the cards are coming to the table to show the outlines of the program which President Truman fell back upon last November, trying to rescue his own and his party's future from the wreckage of overwhelming defeat.

He is in the midst of a political gamble—one of the most desperate such gambles ever ventured by any figure in our national life.

Moreover, in its early stages the gamble has been paying off richly. President Truman, who was being counted out by his own party three short months ago, is back in the saddle and well aware of it. He slapped down his gigantic budget before Congress with a "take-it-or-leave-it" air; has refused even to discuss the qualifications of his recent appointees.

A hundred days after his party's ignominious defeat, he is being boomed for re-election by his national chairman, and has coyly refused to affirm or deny his own interest.

The early success of the new Truman program has been due in considerable measure to the fact that its nature hasn't been widely recognized. Part of the difficulties of the Republican majorities in the two Houses of Congress has been the result of this fundamental shift of power and direction in the national government, so that in some issues the Republicans have been left shadow-boxing.

Let's try to analyze the new Truman program.

To begin with, let's agree that the importance of events has nothing to do with the noise they make. Bacteria can be more deadly than bullets; a heavy freeze can change the landscape more than an earthquake.

And let's begin with another fact which all Americans know—that throughout the history of this country there has been a constant pressure from the professional military groups to take over the control of public affairs.

MENTOR AND PUPILS ADDRESS ROTARIANS

John C. Burris Informs Localities of Activities of Bristol Hi-Y Club

INFORM OF SERVICE

A vocational service program, under direction of member Dr. John J. Hargrave, was presented at the Rotary Club meeting in the Elks' Home yesterday afternoon, when John C. Burris, member of Bristol high school faculty, and counselor for male students and the Hi-Y director, told members of the problems and activities of the Hi-Y Club.

Also on hand were two student officers of the Hi-Y Club, Edward Finegan, president, and Wesley Mount, secretary, each speaking briefly on certain activities of the Hi-Y Club.

Burris, who directs the boys' guidance office at the high school, discussed some of the problems of his office, including student planning for careers, problems of adjustment in school and class, problems of delinquency, and problems of getting along with people. He pointed out that limited facilities make it impossible at this time to expand the Hi-Y Club to accommodate the number of students who would like to be active in this organization.

Finegan told members of the conferences conducted by Hi-Y organizations each year. Mount told of the yearly program of the club. He pointed out that new members are admitted with three qualifications in view, namely, service, dependability and ability to work. "The Hi-Y Club is a service club in the school," he said. "It was formed to create, maintain and extend throughout the community and school the highest principles of Christian character."

Burris, who answered questions for members after the talks, stated that groundwork is now being laid in this section for a future YMCA organization in Bristol.

Neibauer Co. buses are operating but during the early morning hours were off schedule. Two buses ran, one behind the other, to break the road. Drivers of motor vehicles experienced difficulty due to pedestrians using the highways. Ofttimes cars had to stop and pull into drifts to avoid accidents, and motorists had great difficulty in this respect. Motorists also encountered much difficulty in Bristol at street intersections, sometimes as high as five cars being blocked at one time at an intersection.

It may be said to the credit of the late President Roosevelt that, tempted though he must have been to fall back on military control during the war emergency, he resisted this to the utmost. Never did he relax his own authority over his generals and admirals—even in purely military affairs. He gave no professional military men key diplomatic posts, gave them no key cabinet positions, relied on civilians like Harry Hopkins and Jimmy Byrnes when he wanted "assistant" presidents.
The gamble which President Truman is making is to turn both the final control and the initiative, in a growing list of the most sensitive public affairs, over to the professional soldiery. Moreover, those he is using to replace his older New Deal advisers, as well as his one-time cluster of master-minds from the Missouri gang, all have a common denominator. They have all passed through a sort of fraternity initiation.
THEY ARE ALL "GRADUATES" OF PEARL HARBOR!

The most sensational development of the winter is the extent to which the fate and future of this nation has been turned over to a kind of "Pearl Harbor Club!"

General George C. Marshall, twice censured by official investigators into the Pearl Harbor disaster, is Secretary of State and next in line for the Presidency if the office becomes vacant—most powerful man in the cabinet, dominant in both domestic and foreign affairs, in control of the most potent propagandizing agency in all the world.

Next most sensitive spot is that of Ambassador to Russia, where the world's peace can be made or broken. This is held by General Walter Bedell Smith, "mystery man" of the Pearl Harbor story, who had the tip-off message about the Japanese raid for hours, and who, for yet unexplained reasons, seems neither to have shown it to General Marshall nor warned the Pearl Harbor Command.

The rest of the list is far too long to include here. Those interested will find part of it on page 399 of the new Morgenstern book, "Pearl Harbor." Not mentioned there is the fact that the two Cabinet posts of Army and Navy are now held by men who were Undersecretaries at the time of Pearl Harbor, and therefore couldn't have failed to know the inside story.

What this shift in the White House's Tea Cup Cabinet means in national policy is already developing. In two fundamentals, it is a wholesale reversal of the Roosevelt program which President Truman had committed himself to follow.

One of these shifts already has been mentioned—the raising of the professional military to supremacy over the civilian. This is as profoundly important a change as was the rise of Bismarck to dominance in Germany a hundred years ago, thereby turning that race into a war machine which racked the world for a century.

The other is the abandonment of Roosevelt's "great experiment" of appeasing Russia and hoping thereby to convert her to ways of peace. Now we are being tough with Russia, and with a vengeance.

Our diplomatic correspondence with Russia has taken a most undiplomatic turn. Bitterness, sarcasm and recrimination have come to the fore in the official utterances of both the Secretary and the Undersecretary of State. Meanwhile the Alaskan war games go ahead, an obvious threat at invading Russia through the backdoor of Siberia. Our national government continues to call for vast rearmament appropriations—rearming against whom? Against Russia, of course.

These are deep waters. It is almost inconceivable that Congress will back up such a sabre-rattling, militaristic program, once its nature becomes clear. It is still less conceivable that the American people will be content to repeat the mistakes which led to the downfall of Germany, of Italy, of Japan—to the downfall, in fact, of every military-minded nation on the face of the globe within the past generation.

As a political equation, the new program has great appeal to those entrenched in power at Washington. It offers a lever by which immense military appropriations can be forced through Congress in time to be used to help win the next election. It offers a fulcrum with which to ram through the Army-Navy plan, with its riders giving the military vast authority over the nation's commerce and economy.

Moreover, it is almost a foregone conclusion that such a new brass-hat command will be tempted into creating a new "war emergency" for the purposes of the coming campaign—a "war scare" with Russia, some of the groundwork of which already has been laid.

It must be remembered that those concerned with Pearl Harbor were necessarily steeped in secret diplomacy, that they have learned from personal observation that at Washington "you can get away with murder if you just wipe up the blood," and that they have had the most expert training and experience in the gentle art of high-pressure politics.

There is another significant point to bear in mind about this new "Pearl Harbor Club"—the members have that most compelling of all motives for sticking together, self-preservation. If they don't hang together, they assuredly will all hang separately (as Franklin once put it). Should any one of this group ever break, and start telling the real story of Pearl Harbor, there would result the most devastating scandal in American history.

From their point of view, they MUST succeed. President Truman—whose own skirts are far from clear of Pearl Harbor mud—has placed his and the country's future in the hands of the most desperate strategists it is possible to imagine.

LOST GRACES?

Are Americans, as a people, less courteous and friendly than they were before the war? In the opinion of Dr. Donald A. Laird, a well-known psychologist, this is so. He thinks that the men and women at home changed even more than the boys overseas and that Americans lost the "human touch of friendliness, neighborliness, consideration and optimism" in wartime shortages and scrambles.

The behavior of Americans during the years of meat, butter and gasoline shortages, nylon lines and black markets was not the most attractive thing in the world and that was true of people on both sides of store counters.

But there is another side of the picture which Dr. Laird does not seem to have weighed sufficiently and that is the comradeship which these same shortages brought. The wartime car pools made friends of neighbors who had barely spoken to each other before. Shared hardships brought understanding and consideration as well as the annoyance and discourtesy of which he speaks.

Whether the nation is winding up with a level of courtesy higher or lower than that which prevailed before the war is debatable. There is no barometer to measure this kind of thing. But it is easy to agree that people could and should be friendlier and more courteous to each other and that modern Americans have lost something of these qualities which their grandparents had.

ONE-WAY STREET

Recently an American admiral was asked to describe the exchange of information on naval matters with Russia during the war. Said the admiral: "One-way street."

The description applies all too aptly to almost any phase of Russian activity one can think of. A case in point, if any is needed, is that of the missing B-29s. Several American Superfortresses, at that time America's most secret aircraft, were forced down in Russian territory. The crews were interned and any American who ever caught sight of the planes again did so entirely by accident.

It is necessary to give the Russians credit for taking the cheapest possible way to get what they didn't have—working models of a highly effective long range bomber. It becomes all the cheaper when it is remembered that it came at a time when Russia was receiving tremendous quantities of American lend-lease supplies and equipment—supposedly with some degree of appreciation.

The word reciprocity must have some peculiar meaning all its own when translated into Russian—if, indeed, it is part of the language.

All take and no give is a policy not exactly guaranteed to promote good will among men and nations. It is becoming increasingly apparent that Russia's desires in that direction are heavily outweighed by her desires in others.

Crime, which costs the nation two billions annually, does not pay, but it is quite expensive.

It may be said to the credit of the late President Roosevelt that, tempted though he must have been to fall back on military control during the war emergency, he resisted this to the utmost. Never did he relax his own authority over his generals and admirals—even in purely military affairs. He gave no professional military men key diplomatic posts, gave them no key cabinet positions, relied on civilians like Harry Hopkins and Jimmy Byrnes when he wanted "assistant" presidents.

The gamble which President Truman is making is to turn both the final control and the initiative, in a growing list of the most sensitive public affairs, over to the professional soldiery. Moreover, those he is using to replace his older New Deal advisers, as well as his one-time cluster of master-minds from the Missouri gang, all have a common denominator. They have all passed through a sort of fraternity initiation.

THEY ARE ALL "GRADUATES" OF PEARL HARBOR!

The most sensational development of the winter is the extent to which the fate and future of this nation has been turned over to a kind of "Pearl Harbor Club!"

General George C. Marshall, twice censured by official investigators into the Pearl Harbor disaster, is Secretary of State and next in line for the Presidency if the office becomes vacant—most powerful man in the cabinet, dominant in both domestic and foreign affairs, in control of the most potent propagandizing agency in all the world.

Next most sensitive spot is that of Ambassador to Russia, where the world's peace can be made or broken. This is held by General Walter Bedell Smith, "mystery man" of the Pearl Harbor story, who had the tip-off message about the Japanese raid for hours, and who, for yet unexplained reasons, seems neither to have shown it to General Marshall nor warned the Pearl Harbor Command.

The rest of the list is far too long to include here. Those interested will find part of it on page 399 of the new Morgenstern book, "Pearl Harbor." Not mentioned there is the fact that the two Cabinet posts of Army and Navy are now held by men who were Undersecretaries at the time of Pearl Harbor, and therefore couldn't have failed to know the inside story.

What this shift in the White House's Tea Cup Cabinet means in national policy is already developing. In two fundamentals, it is a wholesale reversal of the Roosevelt program which President Truman had committed himself to follow.

One of these shifts already has been mentioned—the raising of the professional military to supremacy over the civilian. This is as profoundly important a change as was the rise of Bismarck to dominance in Germany a hundred years ago, thereby turning that race into a war machine which racked the world for a century.

The other is the abandonment of Roosevelt's "great experiment" of appeasing Russia and hoping thereby to convert her to ways of peace. Now we are being tough with Russia, and with a vengeance.

Our diplomatic correspondence with Russia has taken a most undiplomatic turn. Bitterness, sarcasm and recrimination have come to the fore in the official utterances of both the Secretary and the Undersecretary of State. Meanwhile the Alaskan war games go ahead, an obvious threat at invading Russia through the backdoor of Siberia. Our national government continues to call for vast rearmament appropriations—rearming against whom? Against Russia, of course.

These are deep waters. It is almost inconceivable that Congress will back up such a sabre-rattling, militaristic program, once its nature becomes clear. It is still less conceivable that the American people will be content to repeat the mistakes which led to the downfall of Germany, of Italy, of Japan—to the downfall, in fact, of every military-minded nation on the face of the globe within the past generation.

As a political equation, the new program has great appeal to those entrenched in power at Washington. It offers a lever by which immense military appropriations can be forced through Congress in time to be used to help win the next election. It offers a fulcrum with which to ram through the Army-Navy plan, with its riders giving the military vast authority over the nation's commerce and economy.

Moreover, it is almost a foregone conclusion that such a new brass-hat command will be tempted into creating a new "war emergency" for the purposes of the coming campaign—a "war scare" with Russia, some of the groundwork of which already has been laid.

It must be remembered that those concerned with Pearl Harbor were necessarily steeped in secret diplomacy, that they have learned from personal observation that at Washington "you can get away with murder if you just wipe up the blood," and that they have had the most expert training and experience in the gentle art of high-pressure politics.

There is another significant point to bear in mind about this new "Pearl Harbor Club"—the members have that most compelling of all motives for sticking together, self-preservation. If they don't hang together, they assuredly will all hang separately (as Franklin once put it). Should any one of this group ever break, and start telling the real story of Pearl Harbor, there would result the most devastating scandal in American history.

From their point of view, they MUST succeed. President Truman—whose own skirts are far from clear of Pearl Harbor mud—has placed his and the country's future in the hands of the most desperate strategists it is possible to imagine.

recitals and broadcasts in the leading cities of Europe. Among her distinguished operatic roles are "Madame Butterfly," Marie in "The Bartered Bride," and Suzanne in "The Marriage of Figaro."

Mrs. Julian McCrery will appear with her husband in a group of piano duets. Mrs. McCrery, a graduate of Fitchburg Teachers College, Massachusetts, studied for several years with prominent private teachers in and around Boston. She taught music and art in Lincoln and Brookline, Mass. Julian McCrery, a graduate of Eastman School of Music, at Rochester, with a Master's degree in piano and theory of music, has been music director at George School for the past 13 years. He is well known in this community for the excellence of his work, both as director and performer.

Lylian G. Elmore will do two groups of songs, one of ballads and one of Negro spirituals. Miss Elmore will be welcomed not only for her beautiful interpretation of Negro music, but for the personal interest in her as a former member of this community. After graduating from Newtown high school she studied at Mercy Hospital, Philadelphia, and later taught school in Fruitland, Md. She went to New York as supervisor of social work and has been studying voice with a private teacher for many years. Miss Elmore has a large repertoire of both sacred and secular music, and has given not only local concerts, but has sung before large audiences at Madison Square Garden and Carnegie Hall, New York, N. Y.

The "Newtown String Trio" will be a new feature in the musical life of the vicinity. It is composed of Mrs. Julian McCrery and Paul and May Nuse. Mr. Nuse, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania music department, Philadelphia, is director of instrumental music at Bristol public schools. Mrs. Nuse has studied violin for many years. Maria Hilker, also on the program, a native of Czechoslovakia, studied at the Prague Conservatory and the Imperial Academy of Music in Vienna where she graduated with honors. The late Sevcik, eminent teacher of violin, who dedicated several compositions to her, said of Miss Hilker: "She has a splendid technique and deep musical insight, and has had, furthermore, excellent experience as a teacher." Miss Hilker and her two sisters were well-known in their appearances as the "Hilgore Trio." Miss Elsa Hilgore is now a member of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the only woman cellist in that body.

and a patriot of Yugoslav. He learned his English by reading Army field manuals and the "Stars and Stripes."

"He did a lot for the United States government," said former Staff Sergeant Carwithen, who explained that Doylestown's stranger within its gates served in the intelligence section and special service under the County Seat sergeant while in the ETO.

Of the personal tragedy in his life he tells very little other than his father died in a Nazi concentration camp and his mother was killed in the frightful bombings in Warsaw.

He likes the American people who, he says, are very polite. He hasn't found the correct American word to describe the "New Yorkers" who gipped him because he was a foreigner.

When the Russians were driving toward his home in Poland and the Germans fled, leaving the concentration prisoners to take off, Stefanski survived and managed to travel 85 miles until he reached American lines.

He served with the American GI's in the Third Battalion, 16th Infantry Regiment in the First Division (Staff Sgt. Carwithen's own) and ate his K-rations just like the other boys.

Other former GI's, who are New World buddies, include Ernest Wagner, Brooklyn; T. Muszewicz, Scranton; John P. Young, Sea Bright, N. J.; John DeRitter, Paterson, N. J.; and Charles R. Cox, Trenton, N. J., all of whom are his guardian American "angels."

Overseas in the ETO, the GI's chipped together to get enough money to pay his steamship passage. He was a guest of Burgess Butler and former Sgt. Carwithen at a meeting of the American Legion last evening.

Refreshments were served to: Miss Jane Rogers, Mrs. Frank Daventport, Mrs. Frank Lynn, Mrs. James MacCorkle, Mrs. John Pearce, Mrs. Merle Schell, Mrs. Alfred Vandegrift and Mrs. Arthur Fine.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. George E. Boswell
Rector, St. James' Episcopal Church

Almighty and most merciful Father, we commend thy blessing upon all the physically and mentally ill. Watch over them with Thy loving care. Grant that they may ever feel that Thou art near them; keep them from being worried and perplexed, relieve them of all bodily pain, and in Thy good time if it be Thy will, restore them to health and happiness once more. We ask for Jesus sake. Amen.

SPORTSMEN'S
BRIEFS
By JOE ELBERSON

Important meeting... when the Edgely Rod & Gun Club meets in the Headley Manor Fire House Tuesday evening final plans will be made for the pheasant raising project to be undertaken in co-operation with the Bristol Fish and Game Protective Association.

A large attendance, not only of Edgely members, but also of Bristol members, is necessary to complete arrangements. A lot of good hard work will be involved in pen construction and in other details of the program. Plenty of co-operation from members and sportsmen in this area will produce real results.

Although final decision has not been made on the number of birds to be raised, it will probably be 200 or more. That many pheasants released on open game cover next fall will mean better hunting for all of us. Therefore, members, non-members, sportsmen, "grippers" and critics should be on hand to offer their aid in the program.

The day-old pheasant chicks will be supplied by the Pennsylvania Game Commission. The Commission will also supply five pounds of feed for each bird. From that point all expenses must be borne by the two clubs.

Hope it passes... House Bill No. 186, introduced at the current session of the General Assembly in Harrisburg, would amend the Fish Law of 1925 by increasing resident licenses from $1.50 to $2.25; the eel chute license from $1.00 to $1.50; the non-resident license from $2.50 to $3.75; and the tourist license from $1.50 to $2.25; providing that at least one-third of each license shall be used for propagation, distribution of fish, and stocking.

Similar bills have been presented in past sessions, differing only in that they earmarked the increased returns for the purchase of open fishing waters and rights, but they have been defeated. The present bill is now in the Committee on Fisheries.

This one should also be passed... House Bill No. 201, now in the Committee on Game and Forestry, would amend the Game Law by increasing resident license fees from $2.00 to $3.00; and the non-resident license fee from $15.00 to $22.50, and would provide that the additional sum of not less than $1.00 from the resident fee and $7.50 from the non-resident fee be used for stocking of game.

Annie Oakleys... although delayed due to the recent closing of the Philadelphia Record, admission-free tickets for the opening night (February 28th) of the Philadelphia Sportsmen's Show (formerly the Philadelphia Record Sportsmen's Show), have been secured by the secretary of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association for the entire Association membership. They were secured through the courtesy of Mrs. Ellen A. Dietrich, well-known Pennsylvania sports-woman and conservationist.

The Bristol club secretary plans to mail these tickets to the membership within a day or two.

Another practice shoot... over the Bristol blue rock traps at Silver Lake Sunday afternoon. Ammunition is available. All are welcome.

Two special features will be introduced, according to James Katz, committee chairman. One of these will be five-men sudden death matches, with a ten dollar first prize for each match. The second will be ten-men doubles, 50-bird matches, with prizes of twenty, twelve and eight dollars to the three high men.
